St. Helena To Conclude Existence After Two Years

Extension Serves Educational Needs Of More Than 2,000 Veteran Students

By Dave Eissenberg

With the termination of classes this June, the St. Helena Extension in Norfolk, which has supplied the educational needs of more than 2,000 Virginia veterans in the last two years, will conclude its short career.

Dr. John E. Pomfret, president of the college, in a statement to the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch said that the peak of veteran enrollment has passed and that continued operation of the extension would not be justified in view of the expected decline in veterans' applications.

Few Veterans Coming

"There are few veterans coming on now," he said, "and we feel it will be in the interest of efficient operation to transfer this work to the division."

Students now attending the extension will be scattered throughout the state in colleges of their choice. Of the students who have completed two years at Saint Helena, approximately 150 will continue their education here next September. About 100 engineering students will transfer to the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, while the remainder have indicated the Universities of Virginia and Richmond as their choice. The undergraduates will be placed similarly throughout the state, with between 125 and 150 transferring to the Norfolk Division. Under this arrangement, veterans will be shifted from one location to another without any delay in completing their studies, it was stated.

The Saint Helena Extension was organized after it became apparent, in June, 1946, that the facilities at Williamsburg would be utterly inadequate to care for the veterans applying for admission, despite the rapid adjustments the college was making.

Navy Gave Lease

The lease to Saint Helena was secured from the Navy on August, 1946. Between this time and September 15, when the extension was formally opened, the dormitories were made ready and several buildings were converted to classrooms and laboratories.

Through the aid of the Norfolk Navy Yard command, an arrangement was made with the Navy Yard Cooperative Association to feed the veterans at $35 a month. A charge of $25 per semester for quarters in the barracks added to this still permitted the G.I. to live within his allotment.

Quick Organization

The director, Colonel H. W. K. Fitzroy, organized the staff in the remarkably short period of three weeks. He had had wide teaching and administrative experience at

Legislature Allocates $200,000 For Student Activities Building

Students May Procure Convocation Tickets

Sophomores, juniors and seniors may obtain tickets for seats at the special convocation to be held on April 2 on Monday and Tuesday, March 22 and 23, at the information desk in Marshall-Wythe from 2-4 P. M. Freshmen may obtain their tickets on Wednesday, March 24, between the same hours.

Tickets will be given out up to the number available and will be issued one to a student, with one extra for married students, upon personal application. The tickets will admit the bearers to the reserved section on the campus or to Blow Gym, in case of rain. If the exercises are held outdoors, there will be unreserved seats as well as standing room available.

All seniors who are without academic caps and gowns and those who wish to order graduation invitations may come to the Student Government Office between 2 and 5 on Wednesday. This is the last day for ordering invitations as the order is to be sent on that day.

Construction Will Get Under Way As Soon As Prices Begin Decline

By Mary Lou Hostetter

Student hopes for the addition of an activities building to the college materialized late Saturday night when the Virginia state legislature gave final approval to a $511,000,000 appropriations bill, the largest of its kind in the history of the state.

Of this sum, $200,000 will be granted unconditionally to the College of William and Mary for the purpose of erecting a student activities building sometime in the future.

Although all state funds are frozen at present and none of this money can be used for building purposes until permission is granted by the state, "plans will be drawn up almost immediately for the construction of the building and the actual process will go into effect as soon as prices come down," Dr. John E. Pomfret, president of the college, declared in a statement to the Flat Hat. But no tentative date has been set as yet.

This appropriation will finance the construction of a "modest building," according to Dr. Pomfret, carrying adequate facilities and permanent quarters for the various campus publications, the Men's and Women's Honor Councils, the Judicial and Executive Committees, Student Government offices, several committee rooms, lounges, a small dance floor and snack bar.

First Proposed In 1940

The first proposal for a student activities building was made in November, of 1940, when President Bryan outlined tentative plans and suggested that enthusiastic endorsement of the project by the student body would greatly assist the administration in promoting the building.

A faculty committee, including Miss Marguerite Wynne-Roberts, Dr. George J. Ryan and Charles P. McCurdy, Jr., then submitted a petition addressed to the president and Board of Visitors at the December meeting of the General Cooperative Committee. This petition subsequently was referred to the Student Assembly.

At the meeting in February one committee member reported that a referendum was held on the proposed student building by the Student Assembly resulting in student endorsement of the resolutions by almost the entire body.

Four Students Win Further Auditions With Horace Heidt

At an audition held yesterday afternoon in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, a representative of Horace Heidt chose Dennis Cogle, Frederic Morton, Ben Johnson and the quartet, Joe Brinkley, Bill Hux, Ollie Amon and Bill Williams, for further auditions for the radio show, Philip Morris Night with Horace Heidt.

These winners will have further auditions tonight when they go to Richmond to perform over station WMBG. Three candidates will be selected from this group, which will consist of approximately 20 persons chosen from auditions in the Richmond area.

These three winners will then be eligible to appear on Horace Heidt's radio show, which will be broadcast on Sunday, March 21, at 10:30 P. M. over an NBC hook-up from Loew's Theater in Richmond. Competing against these candidates will be the winner from the Washington area. Final selection of a winner from this group will be made by Horace Heidt and audience applause, which will be registered on a meter. The contestant winning on Sunday night will collect $250 and be eligible for competition against winners from other cities on a future broadcast.

Heidt, who feels that there are many capable entertainers who cannot afford to leave the security of their homes and steady jobs to take a chance in Hollywood or New York, has recently been touring.

Rey And Gomez Head Dance Review

By Eva Kafka

Federico Rey and Lolita Gomez will present their new review, Rhythms of Spain, tomorrow at 8 P. M. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Rey has prepared a brilliant program featuring authentic dances of his native Spain, and, wherever he has appeared, enthusiasm for his particular brand of dancing has never failed to follow. In New York PM praised him as a dancer "whose work bristles with vitality, style, and a fine sense of the creative." Further proof of his versatility is the fact that most of the costumes used in the current production were designed by Rey himself.

With Rey is his co-star, Lolita Gomez, who was chosen by Vincente Escudero as his partner after the death of the celebrated Argentinita. Coming to New York after a tour of South and Central America, Lolita attracted immediate attention, and soon joined the company which Rey was organizing after his discharge from military service.

Other members of the company include Tina Ramirez, a dancer who is making her debut this year, Carlos Montoya, one of the best known of all Spanish guitar virtuosos, and the Spanish pianist, Pablo Miguel.

"A reception for the dancers will be given by members of the Spanish Club for all who wish to attend tomorrow evening, following the performance, in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta," announced Barbara Brink, club president.

The program will include Dance from La Vida Breve by M. de Falla; La Corrida by Valverde; Triana by Albeniz; several Basque dances; El Amor Brujo by De Falla, a love story interpreted by the dancers; a solo by the guitarist Montoya and Aragon by Albeniz.

After the intermission the program will continue with El Pelele of Goyescas by Granados, the theme taken from a famous painting by Goya; Bolero; Malaguena by E. Lecuona; Cafe Cantante by Waldteufel, a parody of the gay nineties in Spain; Fandanguillo by Vives; Scene from Old Madrid by Chueca and Flamenco Dancers, participated in by the whole company.

Activities Building

One of the most essential single elements to a residence college such as William and Mary appeared as something more than a hope last Saturday with the appropriation of money for the construction of a student activities building where students can gather for recreational and extra-curricular activities ON the campus. The institution of the lodge system for the fraternities and the construction of the new student activities building and the proposed dormitories will make possible a complete campus and one which will have all the components necessary for a well-rounded student life.

William and Mary has never quite completed its program of construction which has transformed the campus during the past 20 years, and completion of the whole program is not anticipated during the foreseeable future because of the inability to predict when the price of building will return to a normal level. The funds provided, especially for the student activities building will be "unfrozen" and work can be started only then.

The college is making a very definite effort to provide the maximum facilities and conditions for a full college life. While perhaps no student enrolled in the college today will derive direct benefits from such buildings as the student activities, it is gratifying to know that a constant effort is being made to better the institution in all respects. That effort will pay off, not only to the students in school when the building program is completed, but in making William and Mary one of the most adequate and complete colleges of its class in the nation.

Lb. Moore Contracts Early Spring Fever

Columnist Supports Split Term For Editors

A sunny Sunday afternoon that makes us yearn for an early spring walk is hardly conducive to crusading or even attempting a mild verbal reform. Hence, we are reduced to commentary—some good, some bad—all lacking the intensity of our usual harangues. Anyway, this will enable Dick Bethards (who privately informed us that he never can quite "wade" through this column) to drop off at some convenient point and still not leave a subject unfinished.

Always try to please the readers, that's us.

Some Spiritual Refreshment

We are often surprised to find students who are totally unaware or uninterested in the chapel services held every Wednesday in Wren Chapel at 6:30.

Not only are the services at a convenient hour, but they are only half an hour long which means the exertion of little time or effort to attend. Although the chapel is full almost every week, it seems unfortunate that so many miss this half-hour respite in the midst of the week's activities. Even a confirmed disbeliever can derive peace and pleasure from sitting for a time in the serene beauty of Wren chapel. We encourage you to drop in of a Wednesday evening for some spiritual refreshment.

We understand our library now houses 300,000 volumes. By comparison with libraries at colleges of comparable size, William and Mary has reason to be proud. And the open stacks, made possible by the honor system, is another advantage we seldom stop to consider. It is worth the time just to wander around among the tomes and impress ourselves with how little we know. The expenditure of time in such a process results in discouragement and frustration, but knowing the things we know nothing about is an education in itself.

Seems too bad, however, that the reading rooms of the library are so poorly equipped and lighted. Unless one is eager enough to bolt into the library the minute the doors open one is more than likely to get a table where just a dim ray of light is cast from the "glowworms" in the ceiling. Little wonder that the library porch is so well inhabited all the time—eye-strain drives us there. Table lamps would be a vast improvement and are usual equipment in any library reading room.

Flat Hat Proposal

Talked with editor Bud the other day about an idea by which he is proposing to change the Flat Hat staff. Bud, and some of the rest of us who have been Flat Hatting for the past four years, feel that the make-up of the staff does not allow for a maximum of efficiency or use of available talent. The status quo provides for two senior members on the editorial staff to put out a paper from September to June with the aid of junior assistants who have not had much experience.

suicide to mention any by name; so for the sake of convenience and my college career, I have decided to categorize the various types of faculty members who thrive in this area. If you associate a type with a certain professor, you will be right on the first guess; but any similarity to the law faculty will be denied vehemently.

"Sleep, Sleep . . ."

First, we have the Svengali type, so called because he can put people to sleep faster than any hypnotist in the world. He defies no-doz, black coffee and all other medications designed to keep one awake. This bore can make the adventures of a vice squad sound many notes. The age of the gags leads one to believe that they are his father's jokes. He, obviously, is one of his mother's.

Next, we have the Outline professor. Without the alphabet and numerals, this kid would be lost. His lectures go something like this: "Now, class, there are animals and humans. Humans can be divided into three classes—males, females and those who haven't made up their minds. Now, the males can be further subdivided into four groups . . ." etc., etc., ad infinitum, ad sanitarium.

"Now, According To . . ."

Closely associated with the Outline clan is that species which delivers the same lectures, comma for comma, every year, the Stereotype type. Now that wire and tape recorders are so reasonably priced, it would seem that this variety would be on its way out.

The new instructors, with their M.A. certificates still warm from the printing press, comprise another element of the faculty. When a student asks a neophyte tutor for a bit of information, the instructor invariably replies, "Now, that's a good question!" Of course, he never answers them, but the kids are really loaded with "good questions."

Then, there's the prof who never looks at his class. The ceiling, floor and windows hold some unusual fascination for him. The students don't learn anything, but that sparrow on the tree outside is one of the best informed birds on earth.

The pet peeve of scholars who take literature courses is the pedagogue who insists on reading aloud endless passages to his class. It would be tolerable if the prof were David Garrick, or even Sonny Tufts; but this guy has about as much feeling as a bouncer in an East Side saloon. Any beauty which the work may have had is destroyed forever by the cacophonous wailings of the sincere, but untalented, professor with delusions of dramatic greatness.

"Glad To See You"

Too, there is the Everybody's Buddy type. He wears flashy, collegiate clothing, lectures in an informal, breezy manner, plays poker with the boys and jokers with the girls. But when the grades are sent out, you discover that your "buddy" has presented you with a big, fat "F." He likes you so much that he wants to have you around next year.

There are several professors, apparently former workers at Oak Ridge, who employ the blackboards extensively, then plant their sizeable frames directly in front of the board so that the students have to stretch, squirm, crane and strain to see 20 percent of the illustration. I know of one math professor whose students are under the impression that a triangle has only two sides.

The One Book professor is aptly named. His sole authority is the text book. Any contrary information is malicious rumor.

"Now In Review . . ."

The conscientious teachers can be exasperating at times. They are so determined that everyone in the class understand everything, their patience knows no bounds. After the eighteenth repetition or so, the professor is still going strong, but most of the students are ready for the paddy-wagon.

One group which is politely tolerated is the Martyr type. These people have been offered fabulous positions at fantastically high salaries. Why they remain in little Williamsburg is a topic shrouded in deepest mystery. Their watchword is, "I could be making millions, but . . ."

Oh, there's no end to the categories. We have the Mind-readers, the professors who know when you're not prepared; the mad geniuses who think that their students are geniuses, too; the test-happy group; the professors who wear vests even in tropical weather so that they can display their Phi Beta keys; those who have an obsession about the doors of the classroom being closed; the one who . . .

. . . Oops! watch yourself, Ronnie. You can't print that one until you graduate!

like the recitation of a last will and testament.

A direct opposite of the Svengali variety is the Yak-Yak, or Bob Hope type. He believes that each lecture must be prefaced with a 20-minute comedy routine, including dialect patter, a soft shoe number and, occasionally, a buck and wing. His students laugh uproariously to encourage him, and, incidentally, to keep from taking too usual fascination for him. The students don't learn anything, but that sparrow on the tree outside is one of the best informed birds on earth.

Letters To The Editor

Thompson Repudiates Flat Hat Ties

To the Editor:

The undersigned begs to inform the public that he is not responsible for, nor does he have any connection with, the unfounded, misleading, biased, inaccurate and ill-considered attacks on internationalism, world federalism, Governor Tuck's original election proposal, etc., which have been made by one Arthur Perry Thompson and which have appeared in this otherwise honorable newspaper under a corrupted form of my name.

Very truly yours,

Arthur BARNARD Thompson, Jr.

To the Editor:

Who is this Arthur P. Thompson, anyway, who is allowed to sing the absurd cant of the Byrd-cage every week in our school paper? And since when does even Mr. Thompson have permission to "take one last slap at that pathetic figure in the White House," who is, after all, our president and future house-guest?

Referring to Mr. Thompson's last glowing editorial, how does he think that Mr. Truman's supporting a Negro bloc vote in the North could swing an election at the expense of all the Southern votes? This seems unlikely. Is it not possible that Mr. Truman is acting from a sincere motive to fulfill his duty as president by attempting to guarantee all United States citizens the rights to which they are so justly entitled? Statistics show us that there are 2,482,000 Negroes living outside the South. If about 50% of the total population is in the voting category, this means that only 1,000,000 Negroes could vote outside the South. In a normal election only about 60% of these would vote.

"The older, cooler heads among the southern Negroes realize that their problems will not be solved by the demagogues," according to Arthur Thompson. Should we suppose that these problems will

Mortar Board Plans Incoming Officers' Training Program

Mary Keeney, president of Mortar Board, has announced that an officers' training program for all incoming officers on campus will be sponsored by Mortar Board on April 15 and 16.

These meetings will be held in Phi Beta Kappa Hall on the evenings of the above dates. Instruction will be handled by members of the faculty and administration.

The first evening meeting will be devoted to talks by the speakers selected by Mortar Board and the second evening open discussion groups are planned.

New officers of fraternities, sororities, interest groups and honorary organizations are urged to attend. They will be notified officially through the Interclub Council of the specific time at a later date.

Judges Will Award Prizes For Royalist Contributions

Judges of the third issue of the Royalist, which will appear next week, will be Mrs. Sidney Rome, instructor in philosophy, Michael Adelstein, instructor in English, Dr. Harold L. Fowler, professor in history, Shirley Sprague and Howard Hyle. Cash prizes will be awarded for first and second choice in both poetry and prose.

Material of all types is now wanted for the fourth issue. The deadline is April 15. Day students may pick up their copies of the Royalist at the information desk at Marshall-Wythe.

be solved by the Southern leaders? The song from the Byrd-cage does not augur much hope for change.

"More people usually die of gang-warfare annually than are lynched in the entire country." Mr. Thompson, here, overlooks the basic fact that one wrong does not rectify another.

We hope that this letter may help to show that Mr. Thompson's articles are his own and are not necessarily endorsed by all the students at the College of William and Mary.

Miscasting Dims 'Macbeth's' Brilliance

By George Walter Knipp

With a single set framed in massive dank green stone, symbolically flecked with bloody red, at once emotionally appropriate and thoroughly functional in supplying several levels and stages—the great rounded arch, within, served as the equivalent of Shakespeare's inner stage—the local production of Macbeth got off to a good start, thanks to Mr. Roger Sherman, who designed the set, and Mr. Albert Haak, who collaborated as technician. Against this admirable background the actors appeared in costumes that had the look of animated drawings from some medieval manuscript; few, however, wore their wigs convincingly, and the hopeful spectator missed the medieval grace of iron clothing. With the College supplying authentic steam for the Witches' Cauldron, wouldn't the Cafeteria have been equally generous with tin cans for the armor-maker? Thank God Macbeth's sword was real metal that flashed in the footlights.

With some help from Stravinsky and from other modern composers and with choreography invented by Miss Duffy, Frances Thatcher, Betty Davis, and Jean Cutler gyrated as the secret, black, and midnight hags. A curious scrambling of sexes along with somewhat high-schoolish intoning of the lines did not avert the danger of grotesque affectation that hovers over these roles. Kenneth McGinn as Duncan was more successful: he played the part with unction, dignity, and the soft waxen vacuity appropriate to an aged King. Richard Hopkins was adequate in the uninspiring role of Malcolm; he did not lend it, however, the intense individuality he gave last year to Angelo the Goldsmith. Bill Norgren handled Banquo with some competence. On a stage that had witnessed The Comedy of Errors done with thorough-going Elizabethan authenticity it is to be regretted that he was not allowed to come on as the visible ghost of Shakespeare's intention.

Buchanan Portrays Porter
Joe Buchanan was predestined to play the Porter—in a fluffy nightgown and with maximum comic gusto. He also reappeared as a silent standard bearer in the final scenes. Jim Bray attempted to suggest battle shock as the bonbastic Sergeant, doubling later as the mysterious Third Murderer. Ben Bray as an old Lord and later as the Doctor of the famous sleepwalking scene was suavely unobtrusive despite the Japanese kimono he was somehow required to wear.

The thoroughly attractive character of Macduff was not fully brought to life by Richard Lee. William Fox, cast as the grimly disaffected Second Murderer, succeeded at most in suggesting the peevishness of a bad little boy. And Wilbert Keys as Siward was not the brave and manly soldier Shakespeare had in mind. Other players made what they could of various minor roles.

Nancy Adams was brought on in an unaccountably Madonna-ish costume for Lady Macduff. (One still dreams, happily, of her Elvira.) Her son was played by young Roland Reboussin.

Leading Roles Discussed

But a production of Macbeth sinks or triumphs with the two leading roles. Here John Manos—for all the charm of his stage personality, the vibrant richness and range of his voice, his power of suggesting inward emotional depths—was not ideally cast as Macbeth. If he captured the dreaminess of the Scotch usurper, if he gave his character a kind of ecstasy not properly belonging there, if he rose toward the inevitable crescendo of the final scenes, he yet failed to capture the sheer physical prowess of the hero-villain, his hardening in evil. 'Common Glory' To Obtain Boyle As New Director

Roger Boyle, director of the Virginia Players at the University of Virginia, has been named to succeed Miss Althea Hunt as director of Paul Green's Common Glory, it was disclosed Thursday by the Executive Committee of the Jamestown Corporation.

The historical drama is scheduled to open here July 2 at the Matoaka Lake amphitheatre.

Miss Hunt will serve as advisory director of the 1948 summer production and will assist the staff chiefly in casting. Boyle was associate director last year.

Competitive Try-outs

In accepting the directorship, Boyle said, "I hope that the experience gained last year will enable us to have an even better performance this year. This will depend in great part on the success of our efforts to find the best acting and production talent available. We hope that a great many of last year's cast will be back with us, but the forthcoming try-outs will be on a strictly competitive basis."

The Common Glory will be presented every night except Monday, beginning on July 2 and continuing through September 6. Plans for the new season call for an enlarged cast, more elaborate scenery and costumes and several new scenes. Author Green has revised and improved the original manuscript.

Wide Experience

Boyle, a former student of the pageant's author, began his dramatic career as an actor with the Greenacre Summer Theater in Eliot, Maine. He has directed more than 100 productions at the University of Virginia.

The Common Glory is sponsored jointly by the Virginia Conservation Commission and the Jamestown Corporation.

BANANA SPLIT — HOT FUDGE SUNDAE

Open 9 A.M. till 1 A.M.

Fifteen days ago at various places across the southern section of the United States and in a few of the other warmer Latin-American nations, spring training for the national pastime of the United States began with the assembly of hundreds of baseball players from the American, National and higher minor leagues.

By now, the players are rounding into shape and "Grapefruit League" games again put the familiar names of DiMaggio, Keller, Williams and the rest of the summer stars into headlines. With the season starting late this year, the players will have an opportunity to play their earlier games in warmer weather than has been the case in the past, when pitchers, especially, often suffered from frigid afternoons of work.

At this time, too, college teams are beginning their serious practices for openers which usually take place around April 1. While it is warm part of the time in March in this part of the country, the strain on players working out in frigid weather makes it difficult for them to make any real headway until reasonably warm weather, at least, comes for a prolonged period.

This condition has always hampered college baseball, but is one for which no remedy can be found, since the baseball schedule of 12 to 20 or so games must be fitted into a two-month period in April and May, and must end before the colleges start their examination periods.

But this chilly weather has its advantages for the other sports. Football, which is sometimes called the national pastime of Williamsburg, gets a good start in its six weeks of work allowed by the rules of the Southern Conference.

Coach Rube McCray and his Indians have been making the most of the time here, with plenty of rough work on the program. And in the process, a number of men who have been working hard have shown up very well. Among these is Randy Davis, a fullback, who makes up in fight what he lacks in weight. He was one of the hardest working members of the team last fall, but was hampered by injuries.

George Hefflin, who was ineligible last season, is playing some very aggressive football, and may help insure great strength at end for the team during 1948. Billy Barnes, blocking back who came to W&M from Norfolk's Granby High School this semester, seems to have the inside track for the blocking back slot left vacant by the impending graduation of Tom Mikula and Jack Hoey.

At present, the Indian team has enough likely looking men to fill all the holes that appeared after the seniors on last fall's team played their last game against Arkansas on New Year's Day. While replacements for such very capable men as Knox Ramsey, Ralph Sazio, Bob Steckroth, Bill Saffo, Stan Magdziak, Mikula and the like are hard to find, to say the least, the fight being put up for the positions is encouraging.

Another sport suffering to a certain degree from the cold weather of this time of year is the tennis squad, which is often delayed in getting to the outdoor courts, the only place where they can get the needed work for their matches on clay.

Although Gardner Larned has departed for balmy climes and Bren Macken is ineligible, the Braves will be a good bet to add another undefeated season to their present string of 41 victories. At present, a number of very capable men are battling for the positions under Tut Bartzan and Fred Kovaleski, the Tribe's aces. Among these are Howe Atwater, Bob Galloway, Bob Doll, Jim Macken, Dick Randall, Lyman Chennault, George Fricke and Bill Ozenberger.

With baseball, track and tennis on the spring schedule, William and Mary students will have plenty of opportunity to witness excellent sports events during the rest of the semester.

And if the college organizes a lacrosse team in time for competition this spring, the calendar of sports events will be about as full as that of any college of this size in the country.

Thomas, Indian Track Coach, Posted Fine College Records

By Hugh DeSampier

The William and Mary track team will open its season on March 27 under the tutelage of a new mentor, who comes to the Indians bringing a record of exceptional merit, both as an athlete and a coach. Al Thomas, Detroit-born, is one of the outstanding trackmen to come from the University of Michigan campus in many years. He also was an excellent performer in football, playing halfback in both high school and college.

During his collegiate career, Thomas performed in a variety of events, running the 100- and 220-yard dashes, the 220-yard low hurdles, and the mile relay in the outdoor season, and the 60-yard dash, the 65-yard low hurdles, and the mile relay indoors. He set the Yost Field House record of 7.4 seconds for the 65-yard low hurdles in 1940, which stood until three weeks ago. Among his best times in the other events are a :09.8 hundred, a :21.7 220-yard dash and a :47.8 quarter in the mile relay.

Made All-America

Thomas was chosen on the All-America track team in 1941, which is the track equivalent of football All-America honors. He made the Big Ten Conference track and field team in both 1941 and 1942. The All-Big Ten team competes annually with the All-Pacific Coast Conference team. In 1940 he was second high point man in the Big Ten Indoor season.

Among Thomas' better-known teammates were Bob Ufer, who held the 440-yard dash indoor record until Herb McKenley came along; Don Canham, national intercollegiate high jump champion; Bill Watson, national intercollegiate decathlon and shot put champion, and Warren Bridenbach, one of the best of the collegiate half-milers at that time.

Finished In '42

Thomas was graduated from Michigan in June of 1942, and entered the Coast Guard as a physical education director. He served 43 months in the service, much of which he spent at sea, operating out of New York and Bermuda. In 1942, he was a member of the Manhattan Beach Naval Base track team which won the Third Naval District championship. Trying his hand at coaching basketball, Thomas turned out a team at the Cape May, N. J., Naval Base that won the Third Naval District championship in 1945. He was separated from the service in November, 1945.

VETERAN WILLIAM AND MARY SHORTSTOP—Tommy (The Kid) Kerczowski (above), takes a cut in one of the workouts during the pre-season training which is now in progress. Playing shortstop, the little Hopelawn, N. J., scrapper is one of the outstanding college prospects in the area because of his hitting, fielding and spirit.

Tribemen Play Initial Contest With Wesleyan

Braving the cold weather of last week, the William and Mary baseball team has been working hard to get ready for the opening tilt scheduled with Wesleyan University March 30 at Cary Field. Coach Marvin Bass stated that there is keen competition for every position, and that all slots would be improved over last season.

Although unable to arrange any practice games before the opener, Bass has set Saturday as the date for the initial intra-squad game, hoping to get a better line on the available material then.

Pitching Headaches

The pitching department is providing Bass with his chief headaches. His first two choices will probably be Bob Gill and Jim Stewart, although Stewart is an unknown quantity as yet because of an arm operation. Gill turned in several fine performances last season, and is being counted on for steady work this year. Behind those two, are another pair of left-handers, Randy Mallory and Stan Magdziak, and three newcomers, Charlie Fox, Curtis McSherry, and A. H. Wardwell. One difficulty with the mound corps, Bass asserted, is the absence of a left-hander. To try to alter this situation, Bass has been working with Ken Wright, who lettered as an outfielder in '47, attempting to convert him into a hurler.

Catching is not providing any trouble, as the Indians have several better-than-average backstops. Dick Games and Olaf Hedman both earned their monograms last year, and Jack Riley is also shaping up well. If Games works behind the plate, Hedman will probably hold down an outfield berth.

Veterans In Infield

In the infield, Bass has three of last year's starters back in the persons of first sacker Bobby Ward, Tommy Kerczowski, All-State shortstop, and Leo Brenner at third. At second base, three promising newcomers to the Williamsburg diamond scene are fighting it out, Paul Webb, Sherman Robinson and Ed Magdziak. Other candidates who might earn starting positions in the infield are Ken Wright or Bob Spencer at first, and Bland Crowder at third.

Harry Robison, Charles Unrue, and Wright return from last year for outfield duty, but they are getting strong competition from Jim Onove, who has been showing up very well in practice sessions, and Hedman.

SAE, Flying Vets Nab Titles; Chennault Wins In Ping Pong

A large crowd turned out Thursday night to see SAE win the Fraternity League championship by defeating Sigma Rho, 43-21. The game was close in the first half, but the winners were much the masters throughout the second frame. The outstanding players for SAE were Bob Steckroth, Bill Lucas and Doc White, while Jim Onove starred for Sigma Rho.

In the Independent League, the Flying Vets took the championship when they topped the By Passers in the first game of Thursday night's double-header, 45-30. Qualls and Williams each racked up 12 points for the winners, but the game's high scorer was McClellan who scored 13 points for the By Passers.

In other games played last week KA beat Sigma Pi, 35-30; SAE swamped Lambda Chi, 111-21; Sigma Rho topped Sigma Pi, 42-30; and KA downed Theta Delt, 56-35. In the Independent League the Rockets defeated the Chicken Coopers 46-27; the Geeks tripped the Rockets 43-37; Sigma Roses were downed by the By Passers 53-24; the Chicken Coopers beat the Dribblers 43-25; and Sigma Roses won over Vets "C" by a forfeit.

Lacrosse Players Work Out Daily; Students Show Much Interest In Sport

Lacrosse may be added to William and Mary's rapidly expanding intercollegiate sports program. Last week, Howard Hyle and Ken Martin petitioned Dr. Sharvy G. Umbeck, dean of the college, for recognition of the team which has been practicing for the past week.

There are a number of lacrosse teams in the Southern Conference area, some having been established comparatively recently. The team at W&L was organized in 1938 by some fraternity men, and is now sponsored by the school athletic department. Duke organized a team in 1941. In the Southern Conference, Maryland, W&L and Duke have teams, while Virginia of the Big Six sponsors one. There are also several teams around Baltimore and elsewhere on the east coast. Matches would be arranged with the Southern Conference and other surrounding teams.

Ken Martin, spokesman for the group, stated, "If there is proper student support, a suitable number of games can be arranged this year, since other schools are actively supporting the sport, and we feel certain that they will be only too glad to play us."

Robert F. Schultz, instructor in government, was a letterman in lacrosse for three years at W&L from 1940 to 1942. He has agreed to act as group representative for the team.

The first practice was held from 3 to 5 P. M. March 8, and further workouts were held daily at that hour throughout the remainder of the week. Saturday practice was held from 2 to 4. Fifteen men are working out with the team at present with hopes of about 15 more in the immediate future. Their present home is the women's athletic field.

Practices for the next two weeks will be concerned solely with fundamentals. The team requests active support in order that they may promote the sport at W&M. Anyone who is interested in lacrosse is urged to try out for the squad.

leagues, will be played this Thursday at 7:45 P. M. in Blow Gym. Tentative plans have been made for the winner of the men's intramural championship game to play Chi Omega, women's intramural champions.

Ping Pong Tourney

In the ping pong tournament held between the two games Friday night, Lyman Chennault, KA, from Tampa, Fla., defeated Tom Forsey, an independent from Ligonier, Pa., who had previously come up with the surprise of the evening when he defeated Bill Shearin, the defending champion and the favorite to win this year's tournament.

In the quarter-finals, Bren Macken, Theta Delta, defeated Tom Hill, Pi KA; Forsey, defeated Slezak, SAE; Shearin, KA, defeated George Valentine, KA; and Chennault, KA, defeated George Fricke, SAE. In the semi-finals Forsey defeated Shearin and Chennault defeated Macken.

KA gained 83 points throughout the tournament to take first place in team scoring. SAE was second with 54 points.

Athletic Department Strengthens Net Schedule; Cornell And Cincinnati Find Places On Slate

Cornell and the University of Cincinnati were added to William and Mary's tennis schedule during the past week end, strengthening the slate considerably. The Big Red will come here for two matches on March 30 and 31, while the encounter with Cincinnati, another home contest, will take place on April 17.

Cornell's squad is probably the strongest in the East. Dick Savitt, No. 26 in the national ratings, and Leonard Steiner, former high-ranking junior, head the outfit.

To make room for the Cincinnati engagement, the match with North Carolina has been shifted to May 1; and the University of Richmond tilt, originally scheduled for March 30, will be played at another time. Seton Hall will be played on April 27, instead of three days earlier, as originally planned.

CCVa Match Definite

The match with the Country Club of Virginia is now definite and will take place in Richmond on May 8. Arrangements are now being made with Williams College for a meeting which is tentatively slated for Williamsburg on April 3.

Miami's Hurricanes, who were to have met the Tribe in a match which will be one of the features of a spring sports festival at Virginia Beach on April 28, will be unable to make the trip and athletic officials are now searching for another opponent. The complete schedule should be ready by next week.

Lineup Uncertain

Partly because of the inclement weather which has allowed few outdoor practices, not even a tentative lineup can be announced for next week's initial match. The only position which is definitely filled is the No. 1 doubles spot which Fred Kovaleski and Captain Tut Bartzen will take care of.

The two star netters are battling for the top spot in singles as they did for the runner-up position last season. Bartzen played second in six of the first seven matches and Kovaleski followed Gardner Larned, the Braves' ace, during the other six encounters on the slate.

After returning to Michigan and completing his requirements for a master's degree in education, he coached the football and track teams at Ishpeming, Mich., High School. The records compiled by his teams there were the best that they have had in 19 years. Starting last September on the coaching staff of William and Mary, his positions included assistant coach for varsity football, junior varsity coach, and cross-country coach.

The JV football team had a mediocre season, winning two games and losing three. The cross-country team fared somewhat better, winning two out of three dual meets, and placing eighth in the Southern Conference meet. This semester Thomas will not be loaded down with other activities and can devote all of his time to the track team.

His comments on this year's team are, in general, quite optimistic. Regarding the attitude and possibilities of the team, he said: "I believe we will have one of the best teams in all-around general ability that W&M has had in the past several years. There is a decided interest among the members of the squad to better themselves. We expect to surprise several teams this year, despite the strength of many of our opponents on this year's schedule."

"I am looking forward to the time when we can develop a real contender for the Southern Conference title. The enthusiasm shown by the team despite hampering weather is very encouraging in regards to Mr. McCray's aim to build W&M up to a representative team in this area. We expect to win our share of dual meets this year."

Chi Omega Tops Kappa For Crown

By Betty Counce

Jefferson Gym was filled to overflowing with spectators last Tuesday, as the Kappa Kappa Gamma's took the floor to defend their '47 basketball title against Chi Omega. After 32 minutes of action the score read 36-25, and Chi Omega emerged as the intramural champions.

Actually the game was decided shortly after the second half began; Jimmie Murphy and Jane Oblender tossed in two field goals and a free throw to raise Chi O's score to 25 and a 12 point margin over Kappa. After that, it was a question of how often the winners could crack the Kappa defense, a defense which blew up when Ann Norman, the loser's star guard, fouled out mid-way in the third period.

Kappa won the coin toss at the start of the contest and chose to receive the center throw—however, this advantage was overcome immediately when Eleanor Grant stole the ball and passed to Jane Beatty, who sunk a hook shot for two points. Betsy DuVol came back for Kappa and made the first of her two field goals in the initial period. Before quarter time, all three Chi O forwards tallied on a succession of fast opening plays from center that left the defense behind them. Barbara Humphrey's three set shots and two charity throws, coming after six free throw markers by Chi O, brought her team to within seven points of the victors, 13-20, at half time.

After intermission Murphy, Oblender and Betty Laine, substituting for Beatty, conspired for nine points, the latter's shots swishing Chi Omega permanently out of Kappa's reach. Thereafter the

Gridders Battle For Positions

The filling of several holes left vacant by the graduation of several of the most important men on the 1947 team has been the chief problem of Coach Rube McCray in the past few weeks of spring training of his William and Mary grid Indians.

According to McCray, the ability of seven or eight reserves and new men may mean the difference between a successful and a mediocre season in 1948. He said, "We feel we have made pretty good progress during our spring practice sessions so far," but he made no effort to indicate that he was well satisfied with all phases of the off-season work.

McCray Makes Shifts

McCray has shifted a number of men around in an effort to find the strongest and most successful combination. Co-captain Lou Hoitsma has been moved to left end to replace Bob Steckroth, and the principal contenders for the opposite flank post are Vito Ragazzo and George Heflin, the second of whom saw no action during 1947.

The guard positions seem pretty well filled in regard to capability and quantity, with Jim McDowell, a regular in 1946, and George Hughes, who has been shifted from center, apparently holding the inside track. Both have considerable experience at the position, Hughes having held it at Norfolk's Maury High School before coming to William and Mary.

Battle For Tackle

Fighting for the tackle post opposite Co-captain Red Caughron are massive Lou Creekmur, Moe Kish and Doug Robinson. At the other vacant post, blocking back, there is also a bitter fight for the top spot. Frank O'Pella, back after a year of ineligibility, freshman Bill Harrison and Joe Mark, a reserve on the 1947 squad, are the chief candidates for the blocking job, and the position is still wide open.

The Indians showed plenty of spirit and fight in the lengthy scrimmage last Saturday which ended a week of hard work.

There will be a meeting March 17 at 6:30 in Barrett West Living Room of all girls who have shown interest in the swimming program this year for the purpose of nominating a Head of Swimming for next year.

Recent Rains Delay Building Of Field

Construction on the new baseball diamond behind the stadium is being continued, but due to the recent rains and inclement weather it is doubtful if the diamond will be ready for the opener of the 1948 season. It should be completed in time, however, for several of the home games.

For track, a new pole vault pit has been constructed. It will be located in front of the William and Mary side of the bleachers in Cary Stadium.

Coach Thomas has said, "When the current work is completed all events will be run off within the stadium, and will be visible from the bleachers."

A new shot put area has been laid out; so has a new high jump pit. This pit will be located near the enclosed end of the arena. Thomas said the shot put and pole vault sites would be ready for the opening meet. The high jump pit may not be completed in time for the first meet, but it will be finished soon after.

Chi Omega

excitement was furnished by Du-Vol who staged her own offense with five minutes remaining on the clock. Her six points via two handed push shots came too late to change the decision.

Individual scoring honors for the night were divided fairly evenly between Murphy, 14 points, Du-Vol, 12, and Oblander, 10 — ranking as the top three. Nominations for best performances went to the Chi O guards Barnes, Mary Ann Hook, and Grant for their superlative zone defense which kept the tall Kappa forwards in check.

By virtue of their 20-15 victory over Jefferson in the playoff for third place, Alpha Chi challenged Kappa for second place. The challenge rule is such that if a team that comes in third has not played the team that came in second during the regular season that team may challenge for second place. The game is set for tonight in Jefferson Gym.

In a slow game marked by many fouls the Alpha Chi's came from behind to win. Playing without their two star guards Ginny Roe and Elaine Akehurst during the first half, Alpha Chi didn't look like the same team which had pushed Chi O the week before.

Swimming tests for all freshmen women will be given in Jefferson pool on Wednesday and Thursday, March 17 and 18. Upperclassmen who have not satisfactorily completed one semester of swimming or demonstrated their ability in some other way will be required to take the test.

W&M Women Represented In Sports Day

Sports' Day was held at Madison College in Harrisonburg, on March 5 and 6. The purpose was to allow state colleges to get together for sports such as basketball and swimming. A discussion was held on each school's viewpoint on a state federation of the AFCW. Each college had one official delegate to present their arguments for or against the organization.

After a banquet held on Friday night, a short talk was made by each delegate and all the colleges represented were in favor of the idea. Martha Adams was the delegate from William and Mary.

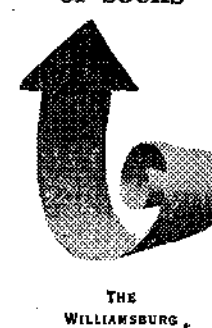

A few of the values in the formation of a state federation would be: to bring about more cooperation and a closer relationship among Virginia colleges; to form a smaller branch of the national organization, which would meet to discuss problems and hear suggestions made by other people; to provide more sports days and conferences; to promote friendliness; to afford opportunity for new ideas and more participation in activities; to bring about events such as sports days as could be arranged for the convenience of all, and to serve as a clearing board for dates and college calendars.

Non-varsity performers as well as varsity members could take part and ratings could be more easily obtained because competent officials would be present at each meet. Swimming, hockey, basketball and tennis would be few of the activities that all could take part in.

At the one big business meeting at Madison the vote was unanimous for the federation, although no constitution has been drawn up. There will be a meeting at RPI in Richmond in April, and there the delegates will formulate objectives and outline in detail a one-year plan. If it is successful they will draw up a constitution at the end of the year using the basic plans. Two advisors have been elected for an undetermined time. They are Miss Margaret Reynolds of Hollins College and Dr. Caroline Sinclair of William and Mary.

After the business meetings a square dance was held on Friday night and a basketball tournament was played on Saturday morning. The swimming meet was held Saturday afternoon and William and Mary tied for first place with Hollins.

Skirts in Sports

By Jimmie Murphy

The playoff between the Women's basketball champions and the masculine victors will be carrying on a tradition that was started last year in the softball intramurals. That game was both fun for the players and provided amusement for the many spectators. This year it is to be carried over to the basketball intramurals.

For the women it gives an added boost to the sports program, which is sought after on this campus, and for the men it is a reward for the hard fight to the championship.

Need For Women's Gym

The game will be played as a benefit to raise funds for the sorely needed women's gym. It is really time that something be done about this horrible situation. The women do need a gym that has the facilities that are necessary to a successful physical education program. Now with that box that makes like a gym, the women are hampered in any attempt to carry on a full and satisfying season of any sort.

This doesn't even take into account the hard problem of trying to work in all the classes that have to take place in that small space. A whole building is necessary so that all the activities could be carried on with ease and sufficient space. Now the dancing classes and Orchesis have to dance in Great Hall where they can not sit on the tables, wear shoes or relax in general. They should have a studio.

Tennis Hampered

There should also be a permanent badminton and tennis court. The women's tennis team, which is the only women's sport which truly represents W&M, is at a great disadvantage because of lack of indoor practice space. And the swimming team had to disband finally because of the limited time allowed to them for practice in Blow Gym, and no one could be expected to swim in that bath tub in Jefferson.

Every sport could be dwelt on in great length but time and space don't allow this. It is only hoped that when the fund is started by the basketball game that it will be followed up and added to so that eventually the college will realize that the women are serious about wanting an adequate gym.

Trackmen Show Improved Times

The Indian track team continued its stiff workouts during the past week. Speed was again stressed with considerable work being done on starts and relay racing. The entire squad is showing rapid improvement, and times are being lowered progressively.

Saturday afternoon saw the scheduled time trials run off in the usual chilling wind. Times were not too outstanding, but were better than those of the previous week. The best comparative time of the day was turned in by Bernard Skiba, who ran the 440-yard dash in 0:56.5. Bob "Bullet" Lawson looked good in the two-mile, and is showing considerable improvement.

According to Coach Thomas, times are beginning to show resemblance to pre-season expectations.

A class in senior lifesaving of the American Red Cross will begin Tuesday, March 23, at 12 noon, and will continue throughout the semester, meeting three times a week. The class is open to both qualified men and women.

Foerster, Noted American Educator, To Address Marshall-Wythe Seminar

Norman Foerster, American educator and critic, will address the Marshall-Wythe Seminar at their next meeting on Friday, March 19, at 4 P. M. in Washington 200.

Foerster, a native of Pittsburgh, was educated at Harvard where he received his B. A. in 1910. He received his M. A. in 1912 from the University of Wisconsin and an honorary Litt. D. from the University of the South. In 1920 and 1921 he studied in France, and in 1927 and 1928 in France and Germany.

From 1911 to 1914 Foerster was an instructor in English at the University of Wisconsin. He then went to the University of North Carolina as an associate professor, became a professor in 1919 and remained there until 1930, when he went to the University of Iowa as the director of the School of Letters and a professor of English. He has been there since that date. Foerster is a member of the executive council of the Modern Language Association, the Modern Language Association of America and the Modern Humanists Research Association.

During the public prominence of the "humanist" group, represented by Irving Babbitt and Paul Elmer More, Professor Foerster was usually accepted as one of that coterie of critics, and he is still in accord with its classical and conservative preconceptions.

He has written and edited textbooks in English as well as works of literary criticism and others with a philosophical and sociological approach.

"Members of the YWCA will meet in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Hall Thursday, March 18, at 7 P. M. for the purpose of electing officers," Dee Isele, president of the organization, has announced.

Dr. Rome To Talk At Chapel Service In Wren Tomorrow

Speaker at the chapel service in Wren tomorrow at 6:30 will be Dr. Sidney C. Rome, assistant professor of philosophy.

In the 20th century the service to mankind practiced by the ministry, medicine and law must be broadened to include the learned citizen of any career. This train of thought was elaborated upon by Richard D. Newman, instructor of fine arts, at the chapel service Wednesday night.

Following up his topic, The Ideals of a Learned Citizen, he declared, "High education is not a possession of the learned man; it is not an inside track to success; but it is a foundation for service to mankind."

Newman brought in the citizen who in wartime is willing to sacrifice his life and personal happiness for his country. In a like way, the "learned citizen" should realize his duties and responsibilities to his civilization in peacetime and should have the same feeling of unselfish sacrifice in order to aid those about him and to improve his society.

Newman stated that he hoped that the students would have this idea of responsibility and privilege which is inherited as they enter the world from college, so that they would go forth to use their education unselfishly for the betterment of mankind.

The Chinese Room of Barrett Hall was completed and opened to the public in February of 1945.

Continual Promotions Mark Career Of Man Who Helped Stop Rommel

By Paul D. Carré

At 10, a pint-sized Harold Alexander, unable to write his own name, gave up "running wild" on his parents' sprawling estate and went to school.

Today, at 56, older in years and wiser in experience, he is Field Marshall Sir Harold Rupert Leofric George Alexander, Viscount of Tunis and Governor General of Canada, K.G., G.C. M.G., G.C.B., C.S.I., D.S.O., M.C., LL.D., A.D.C.

This simple comparison is probably the best index to the character and personality of the principal speaker at the "special" convocation to be held here in April.

Countless Titles

To say that Canada's governor general has covered a lot of ground in some 40-odd years would be putting it mildly. His countless titles and decorations, the impressive string of citations which follows his name, seem, in themselves, to chart his career. Alexander's life to date may be said to have been one continuous promotion, starting at 25 with the rank of major and spiraling upward to governor general of Britain's largest dominion in 1946.

His most notable military success came at a crucial moment in World War II. It was Alexander, who, with Montgomery, turned back Rommel's seemingly indestructible Afrika Korps from the very gates of Cairo, hammered the fading Nazi line with an unprecedented union of artillery, ground force and air support, and ultimately banished the invader from Africa.

Initiative Nurtured

An athletic man of medium height, with dark hair and a clipped mustache, Alexander nurtured individual initiative in his junior officers and in his men. He was an outspoken advocate of offensive warfare, a pioneer in commando attack, and one of those responsible for the creation of battle training schools scattered across a wartime England.

The dispatches of three wars have mentioned the near-legendary name of Harold Alexander. In World War I, as commander of Irish troops from 1914 to 1918 in France, he went over the top 30 times before being wounded. After the close of the war, in 1919, he led the Baltic Landwehr of the Leftist Army when the allies intervened against the Bolsheviks in Russia.

World War II proved the greatest vehicle for Alexander's military genius. Following the recall of Lord Gort, he was in supreme command of the disastrous Dunkerque evacuation. The last to leave the bloody beaches, he has been credited with saving the lives of many who otherwise would have perished in the fast-closing German pincer.

"Attack, Attack"

Next, he succeeded General Sir Claude Auchinleck as commander in chief of the Southern Command and set precedents in the use of RAF support of ground troops. In 1942 Alexander was switched to the Burma Theater, where, with his troops fighting a losing battle against the jungle-smart Japs, he is said to have uttered, "Attack, attack, and attack again, even when you are on the defensive."

Back in Europe after the Burma campaign, Alexander, now a full general, in quick succession became Commander in Chief of the Middle East, Deputy Commander in Chief in Northern Africa, military governor of Sicily, and finally, in 1944, the Supreme Allied Commander of the Mediterranean Theater.

At the war's end, in 1946, Viscount Alexander had the postmaster forward his mail from the War Ministry in London to the Government House in Ottawa, where now he resides as the 17th Governor General of Canada.

Airlines And Buses Offer Transportation for Vacation

Students wishing to fly home for the Spring Recess may make reservations with the Capital Airlines through its representative, Mr. Lancaster, who will be located on the second floor corridor of the Wren building tomorrow from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M.

A special bus, the rate for which will be decided by the number of students who take it, will run directly from Williamsburg to Byrd Airport in Richmond to connect with the Capital, Eastern, and American lines on April 3.

W&M To Transfer Share Of Property In Local School

With the provision that teacher-training facilities will not be interrupted, William and Mary plans to turn over its share of Matthew Whaley High School property to the city of Williamsburg as soon as such an enactment bill is passed by the state legislature.

Originally, the high school building was located on what is now the palace site. When the Restoration was laying its plans for the reconstruction of Williamsburg, it purchased this territory from the city.

In addition, grounds belonging to the college and located behind the city property were also turned over to the Restoration.

When the curriculum of the education department of the college was expanded to include a teacher-training program in 1930, William and Mary, in conjunction with the City Council, erected the present $350,000 structure with the college owning five-eighths of the total property.

Clarke Will Head Wythe Law Club As Chancellor

Last Wednesday night William G. Clarke was elected to fill the office of Chancellor for the Wythe Law Club, which has been vacant since Donald Taylor received his law degree and entered active practice and teaching.

The club members held a beer party yesterday afternoon in honor of the new Chancellor, who recently was admitted to the Virginia Bar.

Judge Frank Armistead, of the 14th Judicial Circuit Court, addressed the Wythe Law Club at the Wednesday meeting. In a colorful talk the Williamsburg jurist reviewed highlights and anecdotes of his career as a lawyer since 1905 and judge since 1927 on the Virginia peninsula. A capacity audience of almost 50 law students plus several law alumni and members of the law faculty heard the address.

Pointing out his deep affection for William and Mary and its law school in particular, Judge Armistead mentioned that his grandfather received his law degree from the college in 1834, and that his father also attended the college. Judge Armistead himself never attended any formal classes at William and Mary, but he was the first law instructor here when the law school was revived in 1920 by President Chandler.

Judge Armistead presides over the circuit court which embraces the counties of New Kent, Charles City, James City, York, Warwick and the city of Williamsburg. He holds court at each of these county seats several times each year.

Spanish Club Will Select Officers At Next Meeting

At the sophomore class meeting last Tuesday, President John Dayton urged all class members to pay their dues to their dormitory solicitors.

Women Choose Achenbach, Canoles To Fill Judicial And Honor Positions

By Joan Carpenter

Carol Achenbach and Jean Canoles were chosen as the chairmen of the Women's Council and Judicial Committee, respectively, when the women students went to the polls last Wednesday afternoon.

Elected at the same time were Nicky Dillard, secretary of the Executive Council; Marcia MacKenzie, secretary of the Judicial Committee; Jeanne Bamforth, junior member of the Judicial Committee and Lee Renander, sophomore member of the Honor Council.

Carol, a Pi Phi, was secretary of the Honor Council this past year. She has also been a member of the Student Assembly and is now a student director of the choir.

Jean, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma from Norfolk, has been on the Judicial Committee for the past three years. Last year she was the sophomore representative to the Student Assembly.

Nicky, a resident of Williamsburg and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, was the secretary of the Publications Committee of the Student Assembly and the secretary of WAA last year. She was the freshman representative of the Executive Council last year, and she has been on the Flat Hat feature staff for two years.

Marcia, new secretary of the Judicial Committee, is also a Theta. A resident of Hoosier, Ind., and an English major, she was the sophomore representative to the Judicial Committee last year.

Jeanne, a Kappa from Harts-ville, Pa., was the freshman representative to the Student Assembly last year and is now the secretary of the sophomore class.

Lee Renander, a member of the Music Club, YWCA and the circulation staff of the Flat Hat, is a Tri Delt from Hempstead, N. Y.

Activities

When presented with these resolutions, the Board of Visitors "reacted favorably" and expressed the belief that a satisfactory plan for financing the building could be evolved. Charles J. Duke, bursar of the college, also showed the committee some preliminary sketches of the proposed building and a committee was appointed to confer with the administrative officers to develop plans for the structure.

However, in April, action by the Board of Visitors concerning this had "of necessity been deferred" and by the end of the session the proposal had been completely laid aside. The following October saw the submission of a plan by the students and the subsequent construction of the Wigwam as a student center.

With the outbreak of the war, civilian defense measures, Red Cross activities and bond sales became of such importance that plans for a student building were dropped, although in March, 1942, President Bryan presented three bonds to the committee to be deposited in the student activities building fund. Present agitation for the building was again raised with the return of normalcy to the campus and was climaxed by the Legislature's $200,000 grant.

Theatre To Present Two Shaw Works

The William and Mary Players will close the current theatrical season with two one-act plays by Irish vegetarian Bernard Shaw, The Dark Lady of the Sonnets and Passion, Poison and Petrification.

Director Althea Hunt has wasted no time in preparing these offerings. The energetic theatre chief has already commenced try-outs for the 11 roles in the two abbreviated productions. She will continue the auditions tomorrow and Friday from 3-4 P. M. in the Wren Kitchen.

Shaw has great fun with Shakespeare in his Dark Lady of the Sonnets. The cast includes Queen Elizabeth, Shakespeare, a Beef-eater and, of course, the Dark Lady herself.

P. P. and P., otherwise entitled The Fatal Gazogene, is a seven-character affair which G. B. S. describes as "a play for barns and booths."

The pair of one-actors will be produced on April 28 and 29 at Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Leach And King Will Direct Revue

Following Ken McGinn's sudden withdrawal as director of the 1948 varsity show, Wilford Leach and Ronald King have announced that they will divide the directorial chores for the May musical.

McGinn's resignation, prompted by a heavy academic schedule, has placed an additional burden on the two men who are already knee-deep in varsity show activities. Leach and King, the new co-directors, are also the co-authors of the forthcoming student revue.

Leach, too, is the designer, and, as technical director, heads all backstage activities. King, the producer, is chief coordinator of every phase of the production.

The cast is now in full rehearsal. Acting rehearsals will be confined to the afternoons until vacation, after which time a night schedule will be followed. The show is being rehearsed in units, scene by scene. Not until April 30, when the 118-character cast will descend upon Phi Beta Kappa Hall, will the production be assembled as a single unit.

President Pomfret Names Committee On Smoking

A committee to frame a generally acceptable regulation covering the matter of smoking in classrooms, which can be incorporated in the forthcoming issue of the college catalogue, has been appointed by Dr. John E. Pomfret, president of the college.

George J. Oliver, director of the summer session, heads the faculty-student committee, which also includes J. Wilfred Lambert, dean of students, Dr. James W. Miller, head of the philosophy department, Dr. W. Warner Moss, head of the government department, Dusty Ash, John Dayton and Shirley Sprague.

Language Students May Improve Skill By Phonetic Drills

By Ethyl Pollock

An experiment in assisting modern language students in more perfect pronunciation is being undertaken by the modern language department, by means of phonetic drill exercises held every weekday afternoon from 1-6 P. M.

Sessions are conducted in half-hour periods. Attendance is optional, but Dr. Pierre Macy, head of the department, emphasized that the program is for the "students' own good." A schedule of classes is posted on the modern language bulletin board on the third floor of Washington Hall.

Conceived In 1941

The present program is the culmination of a plan conceived by Dr. Macy when he arrived at the college in 1941. The war hindered progress by making it impossible to obtain the necessary mechanical recording equipment.

Recordings made by instructors in the modern language department are the mainspring of the program. On one side of the record is a specific drill in sounds. The reading at a slow rate of speech of a given classroom text comprises the other side. Each week a different recording is used with progressive exercises in articulation, syllabification and intonation.

Recordings which reproduce literary excerpts in prose and poetry are read first at a slow rate of speed, and a second time at a normal speed. Several different persons make the records in order to accustom the students to different voices.

Order Of Events

The student first listens to the record, then reads silently from his text to the accompaniment of the record. As the third step, the student reads aloud with the record and finally hears the record with his book closed.

Students assisting with the operation of the recording machine are Richard Lechaud in French and German and R. A. Sabe in Spanish.

his external energy, savage and terrible. The dauntless Miss Hunt cast Manos as Macbeth when Heaven meant him for Richard II.

To the almost insuperable challenge of Lady Macbeth, Mary McCarthy responded with unfailing intelligence and courage. She achieved some moments of pathos and power, most notably in her final exit. The designer, moreover, had given her a succession of lovely costumes, and she wore them like a Queen.

Battle Scenes Difficult

The closing battle scenes are always difficult. Here they were managed with ingenuity and gusto but incomplete realization otherwise. Too many of the military gentlemen looked like supers hauled on in Aida at a dollar a head. And the comic nose-guards on their ersatz helmets helped not at all.

Honors of the evening go to Roger Sherman for his efficient and atmospheric scenery and to William Shakespeare for his deathless lines: these no mistakes in casting can ever wholly vanquish.
